

Information and Advice for Tutors

How Kenwood Works

Kenwood acts as your agent. We find families who need a tutor, match you based on subject, level, and location, and handle admin — invoicing and payment collection — so you can focus on teaching. You remain self-employed throughout, responsible for your own tax and National Insurance, and free to work with other agencies or private students alongside us.

Setting Your Fee

You set your own hourly rate. We add a margin on top when we invoice the family, so what you charge is exactly what you receive. See our separate Tutor Fee Guidance document for suggested rates based on experience. Once agreed, your rate can be changed but requires our written consent — this keeps things consistent and avoids confusion with families.

The Trial Lesson

Every new family's first lesson is offered to them at half price. This doesn't affect you — you're paid your full agreed rate for the trial lesson as normal. Kenwood covers the difference between what the family pays and your full fee ourselves, as a cost of winning new families.

Getting Matched

When a family enquiry looks like a good fit, we'll contact you directly to check you're interested and available before saying anything to the family. You're never obliged to accept a match, and we're not obliged to offer you a fixed amount of work.

Most of our tutors work with other agencies or private students alongside Kenwood — that's completely normal, and we don't expect to be your only source of work.

Getting Started with a Family

Once you're matched, the family will sign our Client Agreement before we share your contact details with them. Once that's done, you're free to get in touch directly to arrange your first session.

Scheduling

You and the family arrange your regular session time directly between yourselves — we're not the go-between for day-to-day logistics. Once agreed, this is managed through TutorCruncher, where you'll have full scheduling permissions (families can't self-book or reschedule through the platform — they'll always come to you directly).

If a session needs to change or be cancelled, this is arranged directly between you and the family. Please keep TutorCruncher up to date with any changes.

Cancellations

If a family cancels a session with less than 24 hours' notice, you're entitled to be paid in full regardless. You're welcome to waive this yourself, at your own discretion, if the cancellation was due to genuine illness or an emergency — that's your call to make.

Running Late

If you're running late for a session, it's your responsibility to arrange to make up the lost time with the family directly — usually at the end of the same session, or at the next lesson if that's not possible. If a dispute about this can't be resolved directly with the family, let us know.

Using TutorCruncher

You'll use TutorCruncher to:

- Schedule, reschedule, and manage your sessions
- Mark lessons complete once delivered
- Submit a short lesson report after each session
- Track your payments

Please log each lesson and submit your report within 24 hours of the session — this feeds directly into invoicing, and late logging may delay your payment.

Post-Lesson Notes for Families

After each session, submit your lesson report in TutorCruncher as usual — families can view this as their record of what was covered.

Getting Paid

Families are invoiced per lesson, automatically, the moment you mark a session complete in TutorCruncher. Once a family pays, funds are automatically split between Kenwood and you at the point of payment — you don't need to wait for us to process anything manually. The exact timing for funds reaching your account, and how often you can withdraw to your bank, is set by TutorCruncher's payment system (typically around 7 days for funds to become available, with automatic payout monthly, plus one manual payout available per month if you want funds sooner).

Expenses

Any expenses — travel, resources, materials — must be agreed with the family before you incur them. We're not able to arrange reimbursement for anything that wasn't agreed in advance.

DBS Checks

You'll need a valid enhanced DBS check, before you can be matched with any family. If you don't already hold one, we can apply on your behalf — only an agency can apply for an enhanced check for you, you can't apply yourself. This is a cost you'd need to cover, and typically takes up to two weeks, so there may be a short gap before placements can begin.

We recheck DBS status annually. We'll be in touch when yours is due for renewal — please let us know immediately if your circumstances change in the meantime.

Confidentiality

Please don't share anything about Kenwood's business, our clients, or other tutors with anyone outside the company — this applies while you're working with us, and for 3 years afterwards.

Referring Someone to Us

If you refer a new family or a new tutor to Kenwood, and they complete 10 sessions, we'll send you a £50 gift card as thanks.

Professional Conduct

- Always be punctual and prepared for sessions
- Maintain appropriate, professional boundaries with students at all times
- Don't contact students directly outside of agreed sessions via personal social media

- Don't provide any service beyond agreed tuition (e.g. mentoring, consultancy) without checking with us first
- Report any safeguarding concern immediately — see our Safeguarding Policy for full details

If Something Isn't Working

If a placement isn't going well — a concern about a student, a dispute you can't resolve directly, or anything else — please contact us as early as possible.
